

Nechi Institute: Centre of Indigenous Learning Present's Community Addictions Training Winter Session 2019

Nechi has been a leader in Indigenous Addictions Training for well over 44 years. At Nechi, we believe that the key to our success in life is healing and reconciliation with ourselves first, and then healing and reconciliation with the people we serve. No other educational institution can match our experiential model and cultural diversified curriculum.

Nechi Institute's Community Addictions Training Certificate (CAT) offers students training in alcohol and drug counselling skills. This program consists of nine modules; each course relates to and builds on skills learned during the previous course.

Each of the nine modules is approved for 40 hours study credit by the Canadian Council of Professional Certification and further approved for 40 hours training by the Canadian Addictions Counselor Certification Federation and Indigenous Certification Board of Canada.
